CT2 + CT1

To create this project, I began by stamping my Popcorn the Bear image in a light brown ink.

Focusing on the bear first, I colored the entire surface with CT1. Next I used CT2 to add shading, working from left to right.

I did the same thing with my CT3, I just did not go as far towards the right as with my CT2. I did not worry about the distinct difference in the colors at this point, as I knew I would be smoothing them out in the next step.

To blend my yellows together, I went back with my CT1 (working in the opposite direction this time, from right to left) and added another layer of color right up to the edge of the CT2. While that was still wet, I used my CT2 marker (starting from the left, or darker side) to flick the color outwards.

This provided me with both a smooth blend and a good contrast in the shading.

I colored his satchel next; I first colored the entire thing (blanket included) with CT3. I added CT4 in the areas of the satchel that would be darker, as well as the strap.

Using GB5, I again darkened the shaded areas; I also added color to the top flap of the satchel. I repeated the process with OR1 (and used both GB5 and OR1 to color the edges of the blanket as well).

I used CT4 to blend them all together (not pictured above, but it can be seen below in the final project photo).

I used CT1 and CT2 to color the pencils and ruler inside the satchel; CT2 and CT3 were used for the apple on the right side of the image.

I left my completed card rather simple – just a bit of yellow checked fabric tape and some flax twine.

I hope you are feeling inspired to use your yellows to create a fun project! The six markers available in this set are really quite fun to work with.
